

Waterman AHW Wins NSW Export Awards

Waterman AHW in Sydney has been named winner of the Small to Medium Services category of the Premier's NSW Export Awards. The award, announced at a gala dinner in Sydney is part of the 2008 Australian Export Awards.

Waterman AHW Sydney was granted this award by the judging panel in recognition of providing a comprehensive range of consulting engineering services in places such as Dubai, Abu Dhabi, Russia, Kazakhstan, Poland and Africa.

As a New South Wales winner, Waterman AHW Sydney becomes a finalist in the National Awards that will be announced in Canberra on 5 December 2008.

Waterman AHW Managing Director, Ray Abraham commented "We have been involved in international markets for more than 5 years from the Sydney office and we have pursued a strategy of development in those regions" Winning this award is a reflection on the caliber of staff that we have here and their ability to deliver on some of the most challenging engineering projects in the world and I am very proud of all of the team involved on our projects"

The 2008 Australian Export Awards (AEA) recognises Australian businesses for excellence and achievement in exporting. The program rewards and profiles the "best of the best" enterprises in exporting around the nation.

Ian Murray AM, Executive Director, Australian Institute of Export commented "There are a large number of awards programs across our state, but there is only one that recognises excellence on the international stage. Like many of our sporting heroes, exporters that receive the recognition of an export award take on the world and win. It's great to recognise excellence, but even greater to recognise those who compete against the best the world has to offer. Congratulations to Waterman AHW for winning the 2008 Premier's NSW Small to Medium Services Export Award."
